LONGER HOURS FOR WORKERS ON PWA JOBS

Washington—Senate Floor Leader Joe Robinson will be appointed to the Supreme Court vacancy—but he won't get the prize plum right away.

Under the law the President must name the successor to Justice Van Devanter before the conclusion of the current session of Congress. But since the session is good for at least another three months, the President has plenty of time to act.

And he is going to take his time—for three very good reasons:

First, to put the heat on Joe to get busy and deliver the judicial reorganization bill. The Arkansas is for the President's measure, but to date his efforts in its behalf have been nothing to write home about. If he will exert himself he can produce some badly needed Senate support.

He can, for example, put the quietus on Vice-President Jack Garner and certain other administration leaders, who while professing to be for the bill, have been secretly sniping at it. Joe also might win over some votes from the opposition camp, for his most zealous backers for the Supreme Court job are among the foes of the President's measure. Joe could put it up to them that if they are such good pals of his they could give tangible expression to their friendship by coming across for him in the Court fight.

Second, the White House wants to keep Joe in the Senate until its legislative program is out of the way. A vacancy in the floor leadership now might lead to a cat-and-dog wrangle for the place, and still further complicate an already badly muddled situation.

Finally, Robinson's 65 years makes it embarrassing to appoint him to the only available vacancy while the court controversy is in progress. However, if several additional justices were authorized, he could be included in the list of appointees on the ground that he is one of a group of representative selections.

So Joe will be kept on tenterhooks to earn his appointment.

Robinson Lobby

The Capital has never seen a more extraordinary lobby than the one plugging for Robinson. It consists almost entirely of senators.

Not only is the entire administration leadership busy, but practically all the Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats are rooting for him. The only ones not active are the progressives—and they are not actually opposing Joe, either.

The ink on Van Devanter's resignation was hardly dry before the lobby was in full cry. Reporters experienced the unique thrill of being buttonholed by big-name senators and urged to go to bat for Robinson.

One of the most amusing incidents was the threatening statement made by Joshua Bailey, who has opposed practically everything advocated by the President.

"If Joe isn't appointed," proclaimed the reactionary North Carolina senator, "the President will lose not only a Senate leader but the entire Senate."

Not for Quotation

The stream of reports that there would be more Supreme Court resignations sent newsmen scurrying to check up on them. One reporter telephoned Chief Justice Hughes at his office in the Supreme Court building.

Hughes' secretary answered, and the correspondent explained he like to talk to the chief justice.

"What about?"

"I want to ask him about the report that he is planning to resign."

"Hold the line a moment," the secretary said. "The reporter could hear him call to the chief justice, explain what was desired and receive the latter reply."

"Tell him not for quotation, nor coming from me, that I do not contemplate resigning."

Business Advisers

Certain "confidential" business advisers who have been offering to tell employers—for a price—how they can evade the Wagner Labor disputes act had better watch their step. They are headed for serious trouble with "the law."

The national labor relations board has quietly collected a large mass of evidence on the operations of these organizations, and is ready to crack down on a number of them. Included in the list are so-called trade associations and concerns which send out weekly or semi-monthly tipster letters to business men.

PRESS SLAPS CHURCH ABOUT FORMER KING

Claims Anglicans Too Harsh With Windsor

London, May 27.—(AP)—The powerful Beaverbrook Press sharply criticized the Church of England today for what it termed a too harsh treatment of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield.

Rallying to the defense of Britain's abdicated monarch, the Daily Express flatly blamed leaders of the church for inspiring virtual governmental ostracism of his wedding to the woman for whom he gave up the throne.

The published list of those invited to attend the ceremony June 3 at the Chateau de Gand was considered remarkable for its many omissions—reportedly under government pressure—and the Express summed up a full column editorial with the question:

"Isn't it possible that the duke is being treated with rather too much of a rough edge?"

"Series of Penalties"

The paper, which was sympathetic to Edward during the crisis leading up to his abdication last December, claimed that as the duke's wedding day approached "a series of penalties and prohibitions are laid against him and against those who desire to show him friendship and affection."

Referring to this "increasingly severe form of ostracism," the Daily Express pointed out that, although it might be claimed the duke had been unwise in his decision to give up the throne if Mrs. Warfield could not be his queen, he had not broken the law in any degree nor had he damaged the country's constitution.

Duke Says "Oul" First

Monts, France, May 27.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor will say "Oul" (yes) first, come a week from today.

Mayor Charles Mercier, the head man of Monts, told him so this noon during another rehearsal of the 15-minute ceremony which will unite the duke and Mrs. Wallis Warfield on June 3.

The mayor spent an hour going over the service with Edward and Mrs. Warfield in the music room of the Chateau de Cande.

When he got there, Mrs. Warfield, gay and smiling, already had taken her place. She and the duke peeped the mayor with questions, especially about who would say "Oul" first.

The duke will say the first "Oul," the mayor replied.

Rare Operation on Baby Is Successful

Portland, Ore., May 27.—(AP)—A baby girl started her 14th month of life today with a good chance to survive and grow normally, after Dr. C. W. Brunkow, child specialist, removed a seven-inch unborn twin growth from the to's body yesterday in a rare, hour-long operation.

Real Competition

Belvidere, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—Competition between a hen and a dog for the affections of six puppies interested the Sigurd Swanson family at their farm home today.

Swanson said the hen insisted in mothering the pups by sitting on them, although her wingspread was barely enough for only three of them.

The mother dog tried only half-heartedly to unseat the hen, Swanson said.

BRADY GANGSTER HUNT CENTERS ON INDIANAPOLIS

Police Hear Mob Trying To Contact An Attorney There

Indianapolis, May 27.—(AP)—Search for the Brady gangsters turned to Indianapolis today following a report to police that two men believed to be members of the mob had made an audacious attempt to obtain an appointment with an Indianapolis attorney who handles criminal cases.

Lemuel Trotter, night watchman at the Indiana state fair grounds, informed police two men resembling Al Brady and James Dolhovey forced him to admit them to an exhibition building where they made a telephone call to the attorney.

Trotter gave police the telephone number. The lawyer denied knowing the identity of the caller and said he refused to make an appointment.

Intense Hunt

Brady and Dolhovey, with Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., form the nucleus of the Brady gang, object of an intense hunt by Federal state and local officers following the holdup Tuesday of the Goodland, Ind., state bank and the wounding of two officers who were pursuing the bandits.

Paul Minneman, state policeman, was growing weaker despite repeated blood transfusions, physicians said at the Logansport hospital where he was taken.

Elmer Craig, deputy sheriff, the other wounded officer, was recovering.

LEWIS' UNION TRAINING ITS WAR ON STEEL

Three Big Independent Companies Under Attack

By The Associated Press

The Committee for Industrial Organization came to grips with three big independent steel producers today over the issue of collective bargaining.

Through its steel workers organizing committee, the CIO chose the strike weapon in an effort to force into line the Inland Steel Corp., the Republic Steel Corp., and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

While the CIO waged war on independent steel, American Federation of Labor chieftains laid plans at Cincinnati for a counter-attack on the John L. Lewis forces. The Cincinnati conference produced additional evidence that some A. F. of L. leaders were ready to ignore traditional craft boundaries and push unionization by industry.

Leaders Face Suspension

The A. F. of L. executive council summoned representatives of several unions charged with showing open sympathy for the rival CIO. They were expected to be sentenced to "suspension," the penalty meted out to the 10 original CIO unions.

Labor and capital alike watched for repercussions of violence attending the United Automobile Workers union's attempt to organize Ford Motor company workers.

Two organizers for the CIO union and 16 other persons were injured in a skirmish outside the company's Detroit plant yesterday.

Union leaders declared the company responsible for the attack on organizers who sought to distribute handbills to Ford workers. An attorney for the U. W. A. filed charges against the company with the national labor relations board.

A one-day work stoppage demonstration of WPA workers was staged in New York in protest against the prospective cut in WPA rolls.

THREATS HEARD

Detroit, May 27.—(AP)—A battle of fists and feet in which distributors of United Automobile Workers of America literature were driven from the Ford Motor Co. gates had repercussions today in three official investigations and union threats of retaliation.

The union received a report that Albert Mooradin, 24, chief shop steward in the Chrysler corporation's Highland Park plant, and a companion, James Kelly, 20, were beaten near the Ford Rouge plant this morning. Mooradin reported they were driving past the Rouge plant when three automobiles forced their car to the curb. He said men armed with blackjacks beat them.

At least 18 union members, among them Richard T. Frankenstein, director of the U. W. A. campaign to organize Ford workers, and Walter Reuther, president of the union's west side local, bore cuts and bruises. Among the injured were eight women.

Investigations today were being conducted by representatives of the Senate civil liberties committee headed by Senator Robert M. La

Fisherman Snags Human Hair From River Here; Police Dragged Stream

Arthur Howe Hooked Wad of Woman's Hair This Morn

Police and firemen dragged Rock river this morning between the Galena avenue bridge and the dam in search of a body, which was believed to have been lodged about 100 feet below the dam. The dragging started after Arthur Howe, this city, went to the police station at 10 o'clock this morning with a wad of human hair, which he said hung to the hook of his line when he pulled it from the river a short time before.

Howe told Chief Van Bibber that he was fishing on the north side of the river about 100 feet west of the dam, and cast his line out into the stream, a distance of about 25 feet from the north bank. He first believed that he had hooked a large fish but when there was no action on the line, he pulled the line from the water to find a wad of hair hanging to the hook. The line appeared to have pulled loose from a heavy object, Howe stated.

Upon examination, Chief Van Bibber stated that the hair was apparently from a woman's head. It was a light brown in color and was matted together. Chief Van Bibber and Chief Sam Cramer of the fire department obtained a boat and with grappling hooks from the city hall, dragged the river for more than an hour without locating a body. Howe accompanied them and pointed out the location where he said his fish line had fouled the object. There was no recent report on file at either the police department or sheriff's office of a missing person which would indicate the presence of a body in the river at the point between the Galena avenue bridge and the dam.

RIGHT TO ASSESS FLAT TAX FACES COURT HEARING

Truck, Bus Companies Of Other States Protesting

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—The authority of Illinois to assess a flat tax or mileage fee against interstate common carriers will be questioned by truck companies of eight other states at a federal court hearing here June 7.

Three judges sitting en banc will hear the case, filed by the Brahear Freight Lines, Inc., of St. Louis and 65 other companies seeking to restrain the state from collecting the fees.

The suit was filed recently after state authorities announced the traffic laws would be enforced and that common carriers from states having no reciprocal agreement with Illinois would be subject to the fees.

The matter has been the source of frequent disputes during the past several years between Illinois and surrounding states. Represented in the suit are Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Indiana, Iowa and Michigan.

Judges Not Selected

The attorney general's office, representing Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes and other state officials named in the suit, will contend that under its motor vehicle laws, the state has the power to assess the fees as well as to regulate length and weight of trucks and that there is no conflict with the federal motor carrier act.

Selection of the judges to hear the case has not been completed.

More recently a set of Shorthorn triplets was born on the Carl Anderson farm near here. Dr. E. Osell, veterinarian, said never before have triplet calves survived, but Minnesota's six are all normal and healthy.

Four Burned Beyond Recognition In Crash of Plane in California

Santa Maria, Calif., May 27.—(AP)—Four persons were killed last night when a plane fell in an alfalfa field near the airport and burned the plane just had taken off.

Burned beyond recognition, the victims were identified as Mrs. C. W. Whitney and Mrs. D. B. Plaugher, both of Carmel, Calif.; Harry F. Emme, Los Angeles oil operator, and Rod Keenan, pilot for the Joe Lewis Air Service, Burbank, Calif.

An eye witness, L. Bail, said the high-wing cabin Lockheed chartered monoplane stalled about 100 feet in the air. Slipping off on one wing, the plane burst into flames and exploded when it struck the ground.

The pilot, decapitated and enveloped in flames, was flung forward over the engine. The other bodies were not recovered from the blazing fuselage for an hour and a half.

Emme was reported to have invited the women, family friends, to accompany him to Los Angeles. Keenan, a few hours earlier, had finished flying an eloping couple to a Las Vegas, Nevada, "marrying judge".

AN EMERGENCY RULING GIVEN BY OFFICIAL

Permits Three Classes Laborers 160 Hours a Month

An emergency ruling of the federal Public Works Administration increasing the number of working hours for three classes of labor employed in the construction of many additional buildings at the Dixon state hospital, the new school building on Lincoln avenue and the high school in Oregon, was made known today at the office of Thomas A. Madden, resident engineer inspector at the Dixon state hospital. The emergency ruling permits carpenters, brick layers and laborers to be employed a maximum of eight hours daily and 160 hours per month. This is an increase of 30 hours monthly, the former ruling providing a working month of 130 hours.

The emergency ruling is expected to be followed later by a change in the federal PWA working code which may provide for the maximum hours as provided for in the instance affecting the conditions locally, which resulted in a protest by carpenters and laborers about two weeks ago. Seven contractors are affected by the ruling, five at the state hospital, one at the new school building and one at the Oregon high school building.

Had Halted Program

The effect of the protest, according to well-founded information available today, had halted a half million dollar building project at the Dixon state hospital. It was rumored today that a diagnostic ward was to be included in the improvement program and plans were being drafted at Springfield, which have been halted. The diagnostic ward was to have been constructed under a PWA project and three state institutions at Lincoln, Peoria and Anna have been approved and are to be constructed.

Shortage of labor has caused a marked delay in the building program at the state hospital grounds and H. C. Hass, superintendent of construction, stated today that he was making application for an extension of time of completion of work from June 30 to Jan. 1, 1938.

The emergency ruling by the PWA affected only three classes of tradesmen, laborers, brick layers and carpenters and in listing the nature of the emergencies, Superintendent Hass set forth the following reasons:

1. A shortage of labor of the above classifications does not per-

Town Board Holds to High Licenses for Outdoor Shows

A special meeting of the Dixon township board was called yesterday afternoon for the purpose of a hearing on the licensing of carnivals in the township. Commander E. N. Bower of the American Legion post, which is sponsoring a carnival next week west of the Borden condorsary, appealed to the town board to reduce the license fee from $25 per day to $12.50. Justice W. T. Terrill, member of the town board favored the reduction, but the remaining justices maintained that the fee of $25 per day or $150 per week, which was established last fall, could continue. The meeting adjourned with no change being made in the license fee.

DAILY HEALTH

By DR. IAGO GALSTON
Suntanning: II

"Half the world wants to tan, the other half doesn't," says a noted dermatologist. "And said to say all too much of either half is getting what the other half wanted and could not get."

Some measure of this, however, can be avoided. To those who do not wish to tan, there are certain agents available which, when applied to the skin, will intercept and render ineffective the tanning rays of the sun.

On the other hand, those who desire to acquire a deep bronzing of the skin, but who are not capable of developing a tan "to suit their fancy" may again help nature through the device of certain chemical applications.

To prevent the skin from becoming tanned, one may apply a solution consisting of 4 parts of zinc oxide, 32 parts of glycerine, and enough rose water to make a total of 100 parts.

This is a physical "sun effect" deterrent.

Care, however, must be exercised in the use of this chemical "parasol." There is some danger that this application may interfere with heat radiation from the body, so that while tanning is deterred, the body may become overheated. This danger is, incidentally, always present in the use of any physical agent which deposits upon the skin a layer of extraneous substance.

There are many preparations sold to the public as sunburn and suntan preventives, and one must bear the above described hazard in mind when using them. In addition, when the ingredients of such sunburn preventives are unknown, there is the added hazard that the individual may be sensitive to some of their elements. Hence, special employing such preparations when use of them is followed by headache or the appearance of a skin inflammation or rash.

Individuals with sensitive skins should, in general, avoid chemical applications. By the use of an actual parasol or beach umbrella, they can escape the direct rays of the sun, and yet bathe in the sea and "air" on the shore.

Those who tan slowly or faintly can use a suntan stimulant oil to hasten and deepen tanning. One such is composed of olive oil to which is added a small quantity of oil of bergamot.

LABOR'S VICTORY OVER FARMER

Organized labor's victory over the American farmer is about complete.

President Roosevelt allowed the bill fixing a 40-hour week and 40 cents an hour as a minimum wage to be introduced without those figures, permitting it to appear that congress had something to do with determining what the maximum hours and the weekly wages should be. Otherwise the legislation is as good as passed.

Industry will pass the cost on to the farmer, but to whom will he pass it? Added cost may not come so much through the minimum wage as through shortening of hours.

"Friends of the farmer," who were better friends of organized labor, sat in the councils of farmers and administered the sleeping powders while the labor program was put over.

Once more we shall be under way on a theory that labor will work short hours and receive high wages and that industry will prosper because it has increased the purchasing power of its employees.

We tried that once. We were in substantial agreement that a circle of prosperity had been created that did not take into account the farmer. He could lump it.

Then suddenly it was discovered that industry and labor could not make money trading hats. Somebody had to pay something to boot. It was the farmer and the residents of the villages and small cities who live close to him and his activities.

When we crawled out of the debris after the crash, we chanted in unison that something should be done for the farmer, that we had been mistaken in attempting to carry on an economic theory that did not take him into account.

For a time it really looked as though the farmer were to come into his own. Powers in Washington even conceded the claim of the farmer to the extent that fixed the actual date, 1909 to 1914, which should be taken as a measure for parity in prices.

But NRA beat AAA to the mark, and industry has beaten agriculture just that much throughout the Roosevelt administration.

While so-called friends of the farmer administered the opiate, the machinery was set in motion to pick his pockets again under authority of law.

It may be that when the job is completed the farmer will be permitted to handle a little more money than before, but somewhere the 1909-14 parity will be lost in the New Shuffle.

The problem is rather simple.

The farmer is promised a return of his share of the dollar as it was measured in 1909-14. But during the years intervening between 1914 and 1929 the share that the farmer lost had been taken by labor.

Now that we are undertaking to give everybody more of everything by producing less, we rapidly are approaching a showdown on the theory that the farmer can be given back his share of the dollar and at the same time labor can keep it and have it added to.

That has been the essence of the New Deal from the beginning.

THE BURDEN OF THE CHILD

The child who works carries a heavy load. He not only carries his own burden, but he carries all the legislation desired by the organized adult population.

Legislation to prohibit child labor is woven in with that taking control of the hours of every one, and he who raises his voice against such governmental control of his activities will be branded at once as one who favors exploitation of children.

We have become familiar with those epithets hurled during the last four years at persons who have questioned the wisdom of the administration in its purpose to change the form of government within a few years.

The president even indicated that those who would not be forced to sign his NRA agreement favored child labor, perpetuation of fire hazards, and operation of business in insanitary quarters.

We even were urged to believe that the supreme court was responsible for failure to control the floods and the dust storms.

We have gone far on that line of reasoning.

Eventually, we shall arrive at our destination.

RUSSIANS AT NORTH POLE

Russian aviators have established an airplane base at the north pole, to serve as a landing place on the projected Moscow-San Francisco air line across the roof of the world.

The blood red Russian flag, embellished with the hammer and sickle now floats at the pole, which the Russians claim they are the first persons to reach. This is somewhat of a surprise to Americans, who were under the impression that Yankees got there first. First we heard that Dr. Cook had been there, and then Peary got back with word that he had been here. Immediately a controversy broke out between Cook and Peary, with the result that Peary's claim was recognized.

The Russians now at the pole assert that Peary never was closer than ninety-four miles to the pole. As to ownership of the area, there is likely to be little trouble. It is said the north pole is not on land anyway, but that the site is covered with ice floes. The United States government never laid claim to the region.

We who have been wondering about the commercial value of a trans-Pacific air line will wonder more than ever about one from Moscow to San Francisco.

From Moscow the aviators will fly straight north until they sight their polar base. Then they will fly straight south to San Francisco. A shorter route would be from Moscow across the Baltic, across central Greenland, Hudson's bay and then southwest to the California metropolis. But of course the Russians do not own land for Atlantic air bases along this route.

Accordingly the way lies for the most part over dreary ice wastes and tundra. It would be uninviting at best, and terrifying in case of forced landing or accident.

If the Russians actually establish an air line it will be interesting to watch and see if they can make a profit from its operations.

DAY DREAMING

Somewhere, perhaps, in this beautiful world

There's a life that is fairer than this;

Somewhere, perhaps, far away, there's a place

Where life is one vision of bliss;

But for me I'll be satisfied just to lie down

By the brook where the violets grow.

And wait for a "bite" as I dream on the bank

In a sweet, piscatorial glow.

Homespun philosophy says social climbers are a "cross between a monkey and a jackass." Aping and braying, eh?

Says the Ogle County Republican: "The old-fashioned folks who used to play each day for their daily bread, have to a large extent been replaced by a crowd who now wait it delivered sliced and wrapped in cellophane." And we understand the WPA union organizers are promising that congress will deliver it toasted after the first of the month.

The transient who was counted out in Dixon the other night after walloping himself with a few bay rum punches perhaps had the idea that prohibition days are here again.

That tornado near Joplin, Mo., was quite an event. It blew a married couple out of their cabin door and carried them to the home of a neighbor. The wife told reporters it was the first time her husband had gone visiting with her since their marriage.

Who says this is not a cock-eyed world? At Decatur last week a group of women delegates to the state G. A. R. encampment went on a midnight frolic in a city patrol wagon. Result: One dead, a dozen injured and a cop with a fractured skull. Decatur is the birthplace of the Illinois G. A. R. 72 years ago, and it had an unusual sort of birthday observance this year.

"SLUNGUM MACHINE" EXTRACTS BEES' HONEY Mitchell, Neb.—(AP)—W. I. Brand, honey farm operator, invented a "slungum machine" for his own use. So successful is his contrivance that its manufacture and sale has developed into a business which can't keep up with the orders.

Slungum is bee glue, old cocoons and other things bees forget to take out of their combs. Brand's machine—he calls it a "honey capping meller"—looks like a bathtub, operates with waste steam and uses the heat principle to separate pure honey, beeswax and slungum, or residue, from the cappings or comb sides.

The honey and wax are drawn off automatically, honey from the bottom and wax from the top, but the slungum must be skimmed from the wax occasionally.

Answer to Question No. 1—

1. Hardly half as philanthropic. The New York Times Magazine gives the figures compiled by the alumnae committee of seven Eastern Women's colleges, showing all gifts by both men and women for all causes during the past five years for the country's six largest cities. Just as many gifts have been made by women as by men; but the total given by men is practically twice as large as that given by women—$198,394,248 by the women and $375,351,883 by the men. It may be objected that the men had more money; but this is not true since the women during that period held a much larger share of the country's great estates and received 64 per cent of the life insurance.

THIS COW WILL WALK

10 MILES FOR A CAFE

West Point, Neb.—(AP)—George Deitel's cow walked 10 miles for her foster twin calves. The cow and the twins were shipped to West Point from Chadron for Deitel. He thought ten miles too far to drive the calves so left them in the stockyard here and drove the cow to his farm. But the cow didn't like that arrangement. She broke out of pasture and walked back to the stockyards in search of the calves. Deitel was called to get her. Deitel solved things by loading the foster mother and the twins in a motor truck and taking them to his farm. Now they are quite content—reunited.

SPAIN CLAIMS ITALY IS TRUE BELLIGERENT

Accuses Fascists Of Violating League Covenant

Geneva, May 27 — (AP) — The Spanish government today accused Italy of the "most scandalous violation" of international principles since the World War in a League of Nations "white book" intended to show the Fascist state as a "truly belligerent power" in violation of the League covenant.

The "white book" is a compilation of documents, one of them purporting to be a "secret" and "most urgent" order from the Italian war office to the corps command of the general staff. The documents allegedly were captured from Italian soldiers fighting on the side of the insurgents in Spain.

The "white book" published today, said Italy was guilty of "the most scandalous violation perpetrated on the European continent since the World War" of the principles which are the basis of any juridically organized international community.

It added: "By behaving in a manner indicated by the documents reproduced in the 'white book,' Italy has helped to prolong the war in Spain; has violated Article 10 of the League covenant and has acted as a truly belligerent power."

Article 10 of the League of Nations covenant says: "The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League."

ABANDON ARMISTICE
London, May 27—(AP)—A British plan for an armistice in Spain was virtually abandoned today.

The disclosure was made along with plans for a simple plea to both sides in the Spanish civil conflict to "humanize the war." This was put in first place on the agenda of the European non-intervention committee.

Previously, a truce to permit the withdrawal of all foreign fighters in Spain has been suggested by the British.

Soviet Russia's members of the committee yesterday blocked immediate dispatch of an appeal to Spain when the non-intervention body attempted to extend the note beyond a mere request to Spaniards to cease bombing of "open towns."

A new draft of the note will be considered by the committee Friday for final action. It was understood the committee also wanted to ask the Spaniards to refrain from aerial bombing. Soviet delegates objected.

The non-intervention committee, after sending the "humanization" note to Spain, is expected to consider a technical plan now in the hands of member governments for the withdrawal of volunteers without an armistice.

Informed sources said if all governments agreed to withdraw volunteers, then the question of an armistice might be returned to the committee's agenda.

RENEW BILBAO SIEGE

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 27—(AP)—Paving the way with a dawn strafing of Basque lines by field guns and airplanes, insurgent forces on the southern Basque front renewed fierce attacks today to close the Basque capital's "backdoor" to central and western Spain.

Hard fighting was reported along the Nervion river and in the hills around Orduna—scene of a Carlist defeat in 1836—where insurgent Gen. Emilio Mola's present day Carlists struggled with allied units of his mechanized forces to choke beleaguered Bilbao.

Despite the preparatory shelling, bombing and machine gunning from the insurgents, the agency said, the defending forces inflicted heavy losses on Mola's men.

In Bilbao, crowded with refugees, the Basque government announced last night a postponement of execution of death sentences against three German aviators captured while serving with Mola's air forces.

The three thus spared, at least temporarily, are Capt. Walter Kienzel, Lieut. Gunther Schulze and Hans Joachim Wandel.

The official announcement said the government had "postponed these executions in order to facilitate calmer discussion about the Spanish situation and to prevent operation of motives which could lead to prolong the intervention of Fascist states in our civil war."

ENDANGER NAZI SHIP

Berlin, May 27—(AP)—The German torpedo boat Albatros, on duty in the international non-intervention fleet off Palma, Mallorca, was "seriously endangered" by a Spanish government aerial attack on the city, an official communique declared today.

Four bombs were said to have fallen close to the German vessel.

REBELS' POSITION

Seville, Spain, May 27—(AP)—Insurgent General Gonzalo Queipo de Llano indicated today the Spanish insurgents might agree to oust all foreign volunteers fighting for them if the government would eject all foreigners in its ranks who had been given Spanish citizenship.

Queipo de Llano, often the spokesman for Generalissimo Francisco Franco, declared in a radio speech:

"We would not consider withdrawal of volunteers inconvenient. In the beginning of the war many foreigners offered their services to us but we did not accept them. It was not until we saw thousands upon thousands of foreigners fighting on the enemy's side that we accepted some."

"However, it must be expressly stated that in case of agreement, the Marxists (meaning the government) must oust all those foreigners to whom they have given documents of Spanish citizenship in an effort to hide them."

Brain Twizzlers

Oh! oh! The old traveling salesman is in again. In fact there are three of them. They were traveling with their wives through the flood territory. They were forced to flee for their lives and met with the following situation. When they came to a river they found one boat in which only two people could cross at a time. The men were very jealous of their wives so no woman could be with a man unless her husband was present. How did they solve the transportation problem and arrive on the other side?

Answer to Yesterday's Twizzle
The racketeer had his penthouse in the twenty-four hours—two ten hour days and four hours of the third day. The faster carpenter can build half the penthouse in twenty hours, the slower man gets two thirds of his half done in that time. That's a total of five-sixths of the penthouse in twenty hours for both of them. The last sixth will take, therefore, four hours for both to of rose buds to match her dress. Following the ceremony the bridal party left for Dixon where they had supper. On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Stuepfert attended the Passion Play at Bloomington. Forty of the immediate families and friends attended the wedding at the church. They are at home on a farm owned by Erwin Stuepfert in Clarion township, four miles west of Mendota.

Methodist Episcopal Church
John Wesley records in his "Journal" an uncommon incident. A chemist of Dutch descent was put in prison because of his inability to meet an obligation. Having a wife and children, Mr. Wesley took an interest in the case. Through a friend money enough was raised by means of which the poor man was released. Sometime later in referring to the incident, John Wesley stated, "But I never saw him since; and reason good; for he could now live without me." It is an uncommon thing for people to refer to their friends only in times of need. Their attitude is similar to that of the Roman governor Felix towards the apostle Paul, "Go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season, I will call for thee." Do you feel that way towards Christ?

"Who Is King?"
For some time we have been receiving letters from Great Britain which are very interesting by reason of the stamps upon them; sometimes the stamp shows the head of King George V; others the head of the abdicated Edward; and more recently some showing the head of George VI.
Anyone unacquainted with the facts of the situation would certainly wonder who is the king; the stamps on the envelopes are misleading. The name "Christian" is a stamp indicating the kingship of Jesus Christ; may we never use it so that others are in doubt as to who is ruling our lives.

Almeria

Important Spanish Port Is Mirror of No. Africa

Almeria important but, famous Spanish port, achieved head-line fame recently when the British destroyer Hunter, serving on international sea patrol duty in the Mediterranean, was disabled by an exploding mine and was towed into Almeria harbor.

"Although a small whitewashed city of only 50,000 inhabitants—still Moorish in appearance—Almeria has some claim to importance as seaport and winter resort," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "In normal times, several ships a day dock in the broad harbor to take on cargoes of grapes, almonds, iron ore, and esparto grass.

Home-Town of 'Malaga' Grapes. "Passengers disembark during the winter, or make the slow journey across the mountains from Madrid by train, to enjoy the typical Andalusian climate. Of the many communities festooned along Spain's Mediterranean shores from Valencia west to Gibraltar, which play the part of resorts in happier times, Almeria is one of the quietest and coziest. Summer heat may hover around 90 degrees at midnight, but the Sahara Desert occasionally blows its torrid breath in this direction all the way across the Mediterranean from Africa. But ordinarily the winter weather fills the palm-shaded promenades with strollers.

"Many of the so-called Malaga 'white' grapes on the fruit stands of Europe and the United States set sail actually from Almeria. Their silver-green ovals packed with ground cork in stout little barrels, they stay firm and fresh for weeks. Their export in normal times amounts to two million barrels a year.

"Southern warmth and tropical disposition are typical of Almeria. 'The Mirror' is one translation offered for the name—the city which mirrors the African foliage, the Moorish architecture, and the Arabic history of Spanish Morocco on the opposite side of the Mediterranean.

"The city is cupped within the broad indentation of the Gulf of Almeria, whose Cupid's bow shoreline curves from the ruined watch tower on Entinas Point to the crystal caves of the Cape de Gata, or Agate Cape, over thirty miles east. Blue harbor and white cluster of houses are backed by gaunt gray cliffs of hills, which gradually close in on the fertile green valley reaching inland.

Was B. C. 'Big Port' "Almeria is roughly heart-shaped. From its lower point at the docks, two broad palm-shaded streets outline the flaring sides. The center is the Puerta de Purchena, irregular sunny square from which radiate the streets literally in all directions. East of there, one lobe of the heart is rounded off in the neat regular blocks of the modern town. The western lobe includes the hilltop ruins of the Moorish citadel, the Alcazaba. The rugged old castle, its crenellated sides studded with towers, still dominates the summit and spreads tentacles of crumbling wall along the ridge of Sierra de Enix. Among its remnants are a mosque modernized as a chapel and valued brick shelters over deep wells. Even the name proclaims its Arabic origin, beginning as it does with the syllable common to those words of rich Moorish memory—Alhambra, Alcazar, and Almeria.

"Tortuous outlines of the medieval town survive near the waterfront. Narrow winding streets have worn off the corners of the city blocks, leaving them as weirdly irregular as cracked ice. From the very midst of this ancient tangle the 16th century cathedral's four massive towers. It is a reminder that Arabic Almeria was part of a Moorish 'Old World' which was annexed to Christian Spain under Ferdinand and Isabella at the same time as the New World overseas.

"Previously, under Arabic kings in the Middle Ages, the city was one of the Moorish oases of cultured even luxurious living in barbaric Europe. White robes and turbaned white roofs were advertisements of the cleanly Moors, who were well acquainted with soap. Fruits of the district, already famous, were candied or preserved for winter use. Brocades and damasks were made in the city and it was famous also for fashioning objects of those rare materials—iron, copper, and glass.

"The seaport Almeria was an entrance for European merchants and a quick exit to Africa for Moors embroiled in tribal feuds. As such its served Granada to the north, capital of the almost mythical magnificence of the Moorish Empire in Spain. Such splendor, however, brought about its own downfall, under the last of the Moorish kings, Boabdil the Unlucky. During a battle with the Christians he was dangerously conspicuous, both for his bravery and for the brilliance of his costume—damascened armor and crimson velvet cloak embroidered in gold; he was captured, and forced to bend his royal knee to Ferdinand and Isabella. Driven from his capital at Granada, he removed his eclipsed court to Almeria; then his Christian sovereigns forced him to leave Spain.

Pertus Magnus, the Big Port.

LOQUACIOUSNESS IN LOWER HOUSE RETARDS ACTION

Representatives May Talk Selves Into Extra Session

Springfield, Ill., May 27—(AP)—Unless the brakes are applied to the oratory, the loquacious house may argue itself into a special session for unfinished work.

Speaker Louie E. Lewis, appropriations chairman James P. Boyle and Senator Harold G. Ward have warned that the end of the session may arrive with important measures yet to be acted upon. To members of his appropriations committee who have left few chances for debate escape them, Boyle made this appeal: "Cut down on your oratory and tell your friends to do the same."

Boyle urged that his committee get down to "real work" and send the bills out in such shape that the necessity for a great deal of argument and amendment on the floor would be removed.

Lewis asserted the house would have to put in full days next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. In a four hour session Monday night, the house worked on one measure—the drivers' license bill. Amendments on the insurance code were the principal accomplishment at a seven and one-third hour session Tuesday.

The University of Illinois request is the only highly controversial appropriation bill.

Buck Governor The university trustees have decided to "buck the governor," putting bills in both houses for $800,000 more than Governor Horner allowed in his budget, although still $1,200,000 under their original estimates.

At a recent junket to the university, several legislators pledged

At a recent junket to the university, several legislators pledged

"whole-hearted support" of the institution's requests, indicating the problem would be threshed out in both houses.

However, the legislature has many other controversial matters to settle before July 1, including the drivers' license issue. The amount of time consumed on these matters will be the deciding factor on whether a special session will be necessary.

In arguing for passage of a bill to increase the pay of the legislators from $3,500 to $5,000 annually, Senator Ward predicted recently there would be considerable unfinished work.

"You and I know," he said, "that we'll be back here in special session this fall."

Governor Horner, however, has said that so far no action has been taken to draw up a program of "must" legislation for this session.

THORNE OWNER OF FASTEST AND SLOWEST RACERS

Six of His Autos Are Entered in 500-Mile Classic

Indianapolis, May 27.—(AP)—Joe Thorne, the 22 years old millionaire sportsman, had the distinction today of owning the fastest and the slowest speedsters to qualify so far for the 500-mile race here Monday.

Lanky Thorne, who towers six feet four inches, has entered six mounts in the speedway competition, and five already have qualified.

Jimmie Snyder of Chicago, one-time milkman, blazed his way to racing glory yesterday in a Thorne creation by averaging 125.287 miles an hour, a new record, for the 25 qualification miles.

Thorne, who has speedboats and airplanes galore in his stable, appeared happier over Snyder's showing than over qualifying himself later at 115.602 miles an hour.

Thorne's average was the slowest recorded in speedway test this year, and chances were he might not get to start. The fastest 33 cars to qualify are permitted to participate.

In addition to Snyder and Thorne eight other pilots went through the tests yesterday. They were: Kelly Petillo, 1935 winner, 124.129; Bob Swanson of Los Angeles, 121.920; Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, 121.822; Rex Mays of Glendale, Calif., 119.968; Floyd Davis of Springfield, Ill., 118.924; Shorty Cantlon of Detroit, 118.555; Al Miller of Detroit, 118.518, and Tony Willman of Milwaukee, 118.242.

Consumption of silver by the arts and industries in the United States and Canada during 1936 totaled 26,500,000 ounces, an increase of 3,000,000 ounces or nearly 15 per cent over the 1935 figure.

'He-Man Bill'

That's What Edward O'Neal Calls New AAA Proposal

BULLETIN

Washington, May 27.—(AP)—Secretary Wallace came out flatly today in support of the proposed "Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1937" sponsored by major farm organizations. "Farmers are in better shape than they ever have been, but they need machinery to keep them well situated," added O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the cabinet officer said.

"I am strongly in favor of the principles and purposes of the bill,"

Washington, May 27.—(AP)—Ed A. O'Neal, spearhead in the campaign for a broad new federal farm program, said today legislation is necessary if agriculture is to keep pace with labor and industry.

"The proposed agricultural adjustment act, sponsored by the federation, assures farmers a fair price for what they promise and gives them production under control so that prices stay fair."

"This is a he-man bill," continued the 62-year-old veteran of a dozen legislative campaigns, settling in a comfortable chair in his downtown hotel room—minus shoes, coat and vest.

President Roosevelt, he said, had given the proposal "The go-ahead signal." Secretary Wallace was invited to testify for its today before the house agriculture committee.

"But the real support for this must come from out in the bushes, out in the grass-roots," O'Neal said.

ILLINI WISHING INDIANA LOT OF BAD LUCK TODAY

Hoosier Defeat Would Give Illinois Full Title Claim

Chicago, May 27.—(AP)—Certain of a half interest in the 1937 baseball championship, Illinois today wished Indiana a lot of bad luck at Ohio State tomorrow and Saturday.

The Illini closed their season yesterday with a 3 to 2 triumph over Northwestern at Champaign, finishing with a record of nine victories and one defeat. In order to match Illinois' mark and gain a title split, the Hoosiers must whip Ohio State twice on the Buckeyes' home grounds.

Murray Franklin's single in the ninth inning drove Fred Reinhart in with the winning run yesterday, breaking up a duel between Captain Hale Swanson of Illinois, and Jack Kaufman, the Wildcat hurler. Swanson allowed only four hits, but one was a triple, two were doubles and all of them figured in the scoring. Kaufman kept eight hits well scattered but suffered from wobbly support.

Ohio State handed Illinois its single defeat in the Illini's opening conference game. Coach Wally Roettger's club came back, however, to whip the Buckeyes, Purdue and Northwestern once each, and Chicago, Michigan and Wisconsin twice each.

Breath-Taking Plunge To Earth Feature of Pan-American Shows

One of the many thrilling sights to be seen next week when the Pan-American Shows appear in Dixon under the auspices of Dixon Post No. 12, American Legion, will be Capt. Geo. Webb, in a head first dive from the dizzy height of 90 feet into a net about eight feet square. Capt. Webb claims the distinction of being one of the first three persons to ever attempt this dangerous feat from such a height, under artificial light, for under those conditions it is much harder to judge the dive so he will hit the net in exactly the right spot. The Legion spring carnival will be held on the show grounds, located just west of the city limits at the Rainbow Inn show grounds. Doors will be open and Dixon's first out-door amusement this spring will be underway at 4 P. M. Monday.

In his rich, booming southern drawl.

He lauded Roosevelt's message Monday urging that a federal wage and hour program and stabilized income for farmers go hand in hand.

Old Age Pensions Resumed, $528,343 Received From U. S.

Springfield, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—Old age assistance payments were resumed today by the auditor's office, with the receipt of $528,343 from the social security board.

The payments were stopped two weeks ago when the federal funds for the first two weeks in May became exhausted. O. R. Taylor, revenue clerk in the auditor's office, said the federal contribution would permit completion of May assistance only.

The information here was that no federal funds for June would be available until Congress passes a deficiency appropriation. The state is $500,000 short in its funds for the June payment, but a deficiency appropriation for this amount has passed the house and is in the senate.

FLAPPER FANNY

"Gimme back my diary! Haven't you got any respect for a woman's innermost secrets, you know?"

Acquittal of Girl and Boy of Charges of Ax-Murder Asked

Jersey City, N. J., May 27.—(AP)—Counsel for 17-year-old Gladys MacKnight appealed to a jury today to acquit her of a murder charge in the hatchet slaying of her mother and "send her back home to her father."

In a quiet summation lasting an hour and 40 minutes, R. Lewis Kennedy, attorney for the girl, referred to her co-defendant, Donald Wightman, 19, and said: "It is not my desire to prove Gladys innocent by proving Donald guilty."

Each accused the other of striking the fatal hatchet blows and told widely divergent stories of the actual slaying. Despite the girl's accusations against Wightman, her attorney indicated a belief the jury should also acquit the youth on the ground he swung the hatchet in self-defense.

Ask Speedy Trial of Utilities Case

Washington, May 27.—(AP)—The Tennessee Electric Power Company and 18 other utilities urged the Supreme Court today to permit a speedy trial before the Eastern Tennessee Federal District court on their petition to limit operations of the Tennessee Valley Authority in eight states.

The power companies ask the high tribunal to refuse to grant a TVA appeal from a ruling by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals ordering trial of the controversy before the Federal District court. In taking that action the Circuit Court dissolved a temporary injunction halting expansion of TVA activities.

The utilities said in their brief today that "both the interests of the public and the interests of these petitioners require that this cause should be speedily tried upon the merits."

COURT HOUSE AT PRINCETON IS COMPLETED

Will Be Dedicated in Special Program on Saturday

The last chapter in the progress of the Bureau county courthouse will soon be written, as the building will be completed Saturday, May 29. K. D. Jennings, resident architect, stated today.

The stairway girders which have caused some delay the past few days arrived Monday and it will take about four days to put them up. Work on the floors was completed Monday afternoon.

The building has been declared the official court house June 1 and court will be held there after that date. Moving of the courthouse furniture and records will start next week.

The dedication of the building has been set for Sunday afternoon, June 6, and on the date the county becomes 100 years old. R. D. Kennicott, and W. O. Axtell, PWA officials of Chicago, will be present and have part in the program.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis and Harold Ickes, PWA administrator, Washington, who were invited to take part in the program, cannot be present. The speaker to take their place has not been named as yet. Churches in the county will celebrate the 100th birthday of the county in their services Sunday morning, June 6.

BURNS SUFFERED IN AUTO CRASH FATAL TO TWO

Taylorville, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—Two of five young persons seriously burned in an automobile accident on state road 48, two miles north of Harvel, died in a hospital here today.

They were Miss Doris Johnston, 19, of Butler, and Thomas Brown, 23, of East St. Louis.

The automobile, in which the group was enroute to a dance at Litchfield last night skidded off the highway, overturned and burst into flames.

Russell Talbert, 21, of Litchfield, was suffering from severe burns in St. Vincent's hospital here. Dorothy Johnston, sister of Doris, and Gertrude Johnston, of Hillsboro, their cousin, were under treatment for severe burns at the Hillsboro hospital.

D. E. Ricardson, Taylorville, saw the demolished car burst into flames as he passed the scene of the accident. He extricated Doris Johnston, Talbert and Brown. He said the other two girls were able to free themselves.

Talbert told police: "Doris was driving and we were trying to pass a truck. The car plunged off the road and that's all I remember."

not aware of the fact that the Wagner act contains a provision aimed squarely at them.

Under Section 8 of the law, employers are not allowed to "interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees" in exercising their right to join unions and bargain collectively. The section proceeds to define "employer" as including not only the actual boss but also "any person acting in the interest of any employer, directly or indirectly."

This language was incorporated in the act expressly for the purpose of curbing sabotage and covert propaganda. It is the intention of the labor board to invoke the provision when it goes after the allegedly offending letter-writers and trade associations.

Since the Supreme Court upheld the Wagner act, employers have been literally flooded with "smart advice" offers on how to "beat the law" despite the court's edict. Some of the specimens in the possession of the labor board counsel employers to flout its rulings. Others advise making a secret "deal" with union leaders, or to stall for time while undercover efforts are pressed to break up the union by use of spies and internal dissension.

MAN SUES CITY FOR TRIMMING ITS OWN TREE

Lincoln, Neb. — (AP) — Andrew Stohman wanted an elm tree in front of his home "topped" so he called the city park department.

There wasn't anyone at home when the park department employees called, but they trimmed a tree they thought "needed it." Stohman filed a claim against the city for $300 damage, alleging the wrong tree was trimmed.

Park Commissioner Orin B. Cope-land investigated, then said:

"It doesn't make any difference. The tree involved is in a parkway, and belongs to the city."

Albania

One of Europe's Smallest Kingdom's Latest Trouble Center

Washington, D. C.—Albania, one of Europe's smallest and least-known kingdoms, had a brief revolt recently in the southern tip of the country. The uprising had as its center the town of Gjinokaster (Argirokaster) in a region inhabited mostly by Tosks, one of the two predominant racial strains among the people of Albania.

"Gjinokaster, a town of approximately 11,000 inhabitants situated near the southern extremity of the country, is predominantly Mohammedan," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "The rest of the population is Greek-speaking orthodox Christian. Only 10 miles from the Greek frontier, Gjinokaster was claimed by Greece at the end of the Balkan wars in 1912-1913 but without success. Mohammedanism, of course, is a hold-over from the long period, 1479 to 1912, when this rugged, mountainous kingdom of the Balkan Peninsula was a part of Turkey."

Makes Cheese and Carpets

"Situated 1,060 feet above sea level among rugged mountains, Gjinokaster's white-roofed houses are ranged along a hilltop and straggle like lines of snow down into the V-shaped valley. Up and down winding mountain roads plod the donkeys of sturdy Tosks plying to and from the town's bazaar with its small, open-faced shops selling cigars, cheese, carpets, woolen materials and other produce. The manufacture of cheese, one of Albania's main exports, is an important industry in Gjinokaster. Another favored occupation there is carpet weaving, a reminder of the long years Albania was under Turkish domination."

"Near the town are great groves of olives, and to the north, American corn, small grains, and other crops are raised in the fertile fields that lie like checkerboards along the valley of the Viosa river between bluish peaks, snowclad throughout much of the year."

"Water is wealth in Albania. She has but two navigable rivers and these are only partially and seasonally so. Wasted torrents from the mountains in winter and bone-dry stream beds in summer—these are the extremes in the water problem of a country where the creation of storage lakes could be an economic boon."

No Mustache, Disgrace

"Many of the Tosks in the vicinity of Gjinokaster who are not farmers are shepherds, tending flocks of sheep, or raising cattle and goats for their wool, hides, and dairy products."

"The Tosks, separated from the less civilized Ghegs of northern Albania by the River Shkumbi, are distinguished by their picturesque dress. In the back country, men wear full, plaited, knee-length, white skirts, wide sashes, and embroidered jackets over white shirts. They like ornamentation, and their jackets may bear enough gold and silver embroidery to pay a first class passage from Albania to New York."

"Modern Albanians will tell you that they represent the most ancient race in southeastern Europe. Their language and tribal customs suggest remote origins. They are probably the descendants of the ancient Illyrians, who in turn came from the Pelagias root race, of which echoes are caught in Greek literature."

"As a race, Albanians are brave and hardy, always faithful to their pledges. Drastic means are often used to enforce their personal laws. Inhospitality is inexcusable at any time."

"Novel are even the minor habits in the daily life of these people isolated until recently. To be without a mustache used to be a disgrace in many parts of northern Albania. The Albanian mother told her child stories in which a hairless man always figured as the villain. Some Albanians refrained from cutting their hair during the new moon lest it turn white."

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN

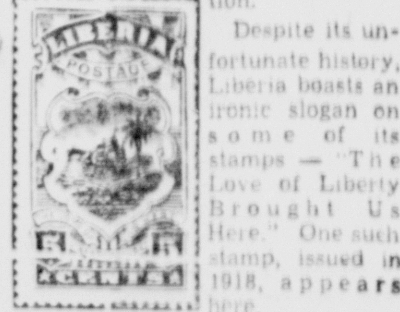

REFUGE OF SLAVES

EARLY in the 19th century, abolitionists and sympathetic slave owners sought a home for the slaves who had worked out their freedom. In 1820, such a group of 88 blacks, led by three white men, set off for a new land in Africa. For two years they wandered about, until they were able to establish a little colony of their own.

Slave raiders and marauding tribes almost decimated this colony. But the survivors held out and, by 1847, the Republic of Liberia was definitely established. More Negroes came from the United States, and the country began to thrive.

Soon, however, politics entered, and a few greedy men took control. The country fell into debt and has not yet been able to recover. Now an attempt is made to put new life into the country, through the aid of an American-owned rubber plantation.

Despite its unfortunate history, Liberia boasts an ironic slogan on some of its stamps—'The Love of Liberty Brought Us Here.' One such stamp, issued in 1918, appears here.

IMPROVEMENT REPORTED IN TIGER PILOT

Crisis Expected In Twenty-Four Hours Say Doctors

New York, May 27—(AP)—An official bulletin said today that Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers who was struck on the head by a pitched ball Tuesday, had passed "a good night" and that his condition "had improved". Cochrane's body is tired and his skull is broken, but the mind that directed the Detroit Tigers to two American League pennants and a world championship still is with his team.

Last night, just after three doctors had ended a consultation and bulletined Cochrane's condition as "slightly improved", Mrs. Cochrane entered the room. Someone had told Mickey the Tigers had lost to the Yankees.

"We lost today?" he whispered. She nodded.

"Very badly?" he asked. His wife told him no and he seemed relieved. Actually the Tigers were beaten by the Yankees, 7-0.

The bulletin said "signs of a cerebral concussion have diminished. The possibility of infection and secondary meningitis is still present". It was signed by Dr. Robert E. Walsh, club physician of the

Just as suddenly as they landed in their slump at the start of the season, after a soaking spring exhibition trip, the Yanks have snapped out of it in the past week. The victory boosted the Yanks' American league lead to three full games, and dropped the Tigers to fourth place.

One of the doctors expressed the belief the crisis would be reached within the next 24 hours. If the Detroit manager, who was beaten by a pitch thrown by Bump Hadley of the Yankees, Tuesday, can hold his own in that time, his chances are much greater, physicians said.

BRADDOCK COLD TO INVITATION FROM NEW YORK

Host To Illinois Athletic Commission Instead At Camp

Chicago, May 27—(AP)—James J. Braddock chose to play host to the Illinois state athletic commission today instead of packing to accept an invitation to become the guest of the New York state athletic commission tomorrow.

The world heavyweight champion received the New York invitation yesterday, learning that his presence was required in the east to go into the final five days of training for "the championship bout with Max Schmeling" June 3.

His manager, Joe Gould, wired the New York commission, explaining patiently that neither of them would be able to accept the invitation because Braddock "is in strict and serious training for his bout with Joe Louis in Chicago June 22 and that such a trip would seriously impede his progress toward

Extend Lead Three Full Games, Beat Detroit Tigers

By SID FEDER Associated Press Sports Writer

It seems the American league was only fooling after all.

For a while there, the junior circuit looked as though it was going to steal the National league's stuff and put on a race as close as one and two.

But the untimely accident to Mickey Cochrane, and the big stick now wielded by the New York Yankees' Murderers' Row make it appear that things are pointing toward somewhat of a repetition of Cleveland's Indians rallied with a four-run spree in the ninth to top the mystifying Philadelphia Athletics, 8-6, a victory which shot the Tribe from fourth to second and lowered the A's to third.

New York's Giants gauged up on Al Hollingsworth in the first five innings to beat the Reds, 6-3, and pull up to a game and a half off the National league pace set by the Pittsburgh Pirates, whose tilt with the Dodgers was rained out. The Cardinals held onto third place with a 6-4 win over the Boston Bees on the strength of Johnny Mize's three-run homer in the ninth.

Lefty Lemaster, the Phillies' pitching find, fanned 10 and handcuffed the Chicago Cubs with three hits for a 6-1 win, his fourth of the year.

LOWDEN'S LILACS ENHANCE BEAUTY OF BIG ESTATE

But Real Pastoral View is Had In Wild Crab
Groves on Farm

Perhaps the most gorgeous array of lilacs in Illinois this season is to be seen at the country estate of Frank O. Lowden, former governor, along the Rock river to the southeast of Oregon. More than fifty varieties are in bloom this year in the large yard surrounding his homestead.

The heavily laden bushes disclose colors ranging from white and delicate pink to shades of deep purple, lavender and violet, and the air is filled with the sweet scent of the blooms.

Blending with the lilacs are numerous bushes bearing white syringas and pink honeysuckles, and not far from the house, set apart to distinguish its beauty, is a mammoth bed of blue iris, the blooms of which are much further advanced than those in any garden in Dixon.

The most interesting floral display on the estate, however, probably is missed by the casual visitor. It is to be found about the center of Mr. Lowden's 4,500-acre back yard, and includes acre after acre of blooming wild crabapple trees.

The large pink blossoms appeared at their best late Wednesday prior to the heavy rain, and the numerous pink clouds floating over vast fields of variegated greens presented a nature picture worth traveling many miles to view.

An interesting touch was added to the pastoral scene by the large herd of Holsteins browsing in the velvety meadows or lying contentedly beneath the nearby pine trees. Any artist who could faithfully reproduce such a scene on canvas would have a masterpiece.

The people of Illinois have reason to be grateful to Mr. Lowden for preserving in an almost natural state this large area along the east shore of the Rock river.

The average motorist traveling the paved highway to Oregon catches only a long-distance view of the Lowden estate lying across the river from Castle Rock, but the real nature lovers will find it well worth their while to drive to the east side of the Rock river and following the gravel trail leading south by the Lowden farm and thence back toward the river through the center of the estate. And the drive should be made before the crab apple trees lose their wealth of blooms.

Police Wounded in Indiana Foray; Brady Gang Sought

Midwestern police sought Al Brady, (alias Al Barton), left; Clarence Lee Shaffer, center, and James Dalhove, the trio pictured uppermost, after a Dillinger-like outbreak in which the Goodland, Ind., State Bank was robbed of $25,000, and two law officers were wounded as the bandits made their getaway. After the robbery the bandits, two of whom were tentatively identified as Brady and Dalhove, sped south, pursued by State Policemen Paul Minneman and Deputy Sheriff Elmer Craig, top to bottom at lower right. Behind a church located at a cross-roads near Logansport, pictured at center, the bandits hid. At the two officers approached, the criminals drove out, riddled the officers' car with machine gun fire, as shown at left below, and drove away. Brady and his companions escaped from an Indiana jail last October.

EARMARKING OF RELIEF FUNDS HIT BY KELLER

Says Only One-Half of Eligible, Needing It Would Get It

Washington, May 27.—(AP)—Representative Kent E. Keller of Ala., Ill., said today earmarking $500,000,000 of the $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation would mean that "only one-half of those eligible for relief and needing relief will get it."

"The whole amount, $1,500,000,000, voted fairly and squarely for relief would be only a fraction of what it should have been to start with," Keller said in an interview.

"The relief fund should have been $2,500,000,000 instead of $1,500,000,000. The smaller amount, with half a billion earmarked out of it, means the throwing out of work of more than a third of the people on work relief."

The House has adopted tentatively amendments to the relief bill which would earmark $300,000,000 for the public works administration, $150,000,000 for highway construction, $45,000,000 for flood control and $10,000,000 to build small lakes and ponds in the great plains dust bowl area.

Administration leaders, determined to reject specific allocations of any part of the relief appropriation, said they would force a roll call on each amendment today when the house begins final consideration of the bill.

Keller said the House should have voted separate appropriations for PWA and other programs instead of earmarking part of the relief fund.

THREE SUFFERED BAD BURNS WHEN OIL CAUGHT FIRE

Lincoln, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—Three persons were recovering today from burns suffered in a fire and a series of explosions at the bulk plant of the Illinois Independent Oil Company at New Holland, nine miles west of here.

Henry Post, 41, operator of the plant, received severe burns on his arms, face and legs and his wife was burned on the hands when she attempted to remove his blazing clothes.

Vernetta Mangold, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mangold, of New Holland, was burned about the body. She was visiting the plant late yesterday when the fire and subsequent explosions occurred while Post was preparing to fill a tank with fuel oil.

The flames, believed to have been started by an electric spark, spread rapidly from the pump house to four large storage tanks which exploded.

H. G. Beach, general manager of the company, estimated the damage at between $10,000 and $15,000.

Stoker for "Poor Man" is Perfected

Urbana, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—Home and industrial coal users are demanding and getting increased service in preparation and treatment of their coal. Ivan A. Given, associate editor of Coal Age magazine, said today in an address at the closing session of the University of Illinois' short course in coal utilization.

Among the services, the speaker listed screenings, crushing, mechanical cleaning and auxiliary treatments such as dedusting.

J. R. Fellows, associate in mechanical engineering at the university, demonstrated a "poor man's stoker" which he devised in his sport time and which he said could be made commercially available "for less than $50".

CLAY CITY WELL PRODUCES 2643 BARRELS DAILY

Clay City, Ill., May 27.—(AP)—Flow of oil from the Travis well, three and one-half miles southeast of here, was being checked today by the use of a quarter-inch choke pipe because of insufficient facilities for handling full production.

Even after being checked, the well's flow for 24 hours yesterday was 2643 barrels, indicating that without the use of the choke the production would have been 300 barrels or more.

The Pure Oil Company has five 500-gallon working tanks near the well, from which the oil is sent through a 4-inch pipe to the loading siding at Clay City. The company had 25 tank cars at Clay City for handling the production when the well was brought in Sunday and is increasing its facilities.

The Travis is said to be most promising well brought in since the Murphy well, near St. Francisville, was drilled at the beginning of production in Lawrence county 25 years ago. The Murphy produced 3600 barrels a day at first and later 3000 barrels, gradually diminishing in later years.

More mileage is an assured fact with D-X or D-X Ethyl, because, as an exclusive feature, these modern motor fuels contain a special high heat-resisting lubricant which provides needed lubrication to upper cylinder parts not adequately lubricated by crankcase oil. (See cross-sectional diagram of motor below.) This extra upper cylinder lubrication makes engines run faster and cooler, decreases wear and increases mileage. And Diamond 760—the pioneer 100% paraffin base, heat-resisting motor oil—insures complete, safe, long-lasting lubrication... actually costs less per mile!

State Hospital

By "UNCLE BUD" John Bracewell was initiated as a member of the Sun Dodgers, the night watches' social organization, with appropriate ceremonies last evening.

The mystery that has hung like a pall over the Cottage A-9 these last few days has been solved. Several days ago one of the residents of the cottage reported to John Fisher, one of the charge attendants, the loss of 7c. Now to the outsider this would not be a serious matter but as patients are limited to having a small sum of money in any one week, this seven cents meant a lot to the boy that had lost it. A rigid inquiry was therefore quietly set in motion but it developed nothing. As A-9 has a reputation of being one of the best developed cottages of the hospital, a number of residents felt that the loss of this money was sort of a blot on their escutcheon which unless solved would react against them. Several days past and still no trace could be found of the missing seven cents. The very air around the cottage seemed permeated with the cold, dank hand of suspicion. The mystery became the sole topic of conversation among the residence. For once the daily doings of the Cuts and the White Sox were forgotten and all that could be heard around the cottage was "Who do you suppose got the 7c?"

Then came clean-up day. It is a cardinal principle on all cottages at this hospital, that the cottage must be thoroughly cleaned from attic to basement. Carrying out the usual practice a detail of patients was sent to the roof of the cottage the ventilating shaft. After removing a collection of rags, paper and other debris, they found tucked away in one corner a collection of nails, bottle tops, string and yes, the 7c.

It may be remembered that A-9 has a pet crow called Plato whose exploits have occasionally been recorded in this column. It may also be noted that crows are notorious thieves and it is believed reasonable that Plato may have abstracted the money from the patient's pocket while he was taking his noon day siesta under the trees around the cottage. At any rate that's the solution generally agreed.

Justice Van Devanter Tastes the Joys of Retirement

Relaxing and unbending as his retirement from active judicial work nears, U. S. Supreme Court Justice Willis Van Devanter enjoys a stroll through a grain field of his farm near Ellicott City, Md.

Since his announced retirement June 2 practically means that he has completed a judicial career that began with his appointment to the Supreme Court in 1910, Van Devanter has evidently enjoyed the slackening of tension. Cordially he posed for cameramen who came to see the farm which has increasingly occupied his attention in recent years. Though he is 78 years old, the justice takes an active interest in the farm's management.

Cool water from the old-fashioned pump is one of the best things about farm life, and Justice Van Devanter enjoys it as much as any other farmer. Here he gives the long-handled pump a good workout.

A-a-a-h! Trying his own version of the Old Oaken Bucket, Justice Van Devanter renders a favorable verdict, and there is no dissenting opinion among the visitors for whom he obligingly manned the pump.

REVIVAL

Bills to Reorganize Government Under Preparation

Washington, May 27—(AP)—A joint congressional committee revived the President's long-dormant governmental reorganization plan today by deciding on prompt introduction in both houses of legislation to rebuild scores of executive agencies from top to bottom.

Senate Majority Leader Robinson announced the joint reorganization committee had agreed to split into House and Senate groups, each of which would draft its own legislation.

The House group was expected to submit at least four bills, designed to carry out the President's program piecemeal.

A single Senate measure embodying the whole reorganization scheme is being drafted by Robinson himself, who said it would be ready to lay before Congress within 10 days.

Senate leaders indicated they probably would hold public hearings on their measure, but that the four House bills would be submitted without hearings.

The reorganization picture was complicated by an announcement by Chairman Byrd (D-Va.) of a special Senate reorganization committee that he would introduce legislation of his own tomorrow.

Byrd's group, which began work before the President submitted his reorganization plan, has differed sharply from his views and those of the administration-dominated joint committee.

MacDonald Resigns Council Presidency

London, May 27—(AP)—Ramsay MacDonald, thrice Prime Minister, offered his resignation today as Lord President of the Council during an audience with King George VI at Buckingham Palace.

It was understood the white-haired elder statesman did not hand over his seal of office. This will be done in the general exchange of seals between outgoing and incoming ministers when a new cabinet is formed after the retirement this week of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin.

The king was understood to have offered MacDonald a "high hereditary honor", presumably an earldom, but the ex-Premier asked permission to decline.

He is expected to be succeeded as Lord President of the Council by Viscount Halifax, now Lord Privy Seal. MacDonald will continue to sit in the House of Commons.

END HEARINGS INTO CAUSE OF ZEP'S DISASTER

Further Consideration of Tragedy Will Be Held Secretly

Lakehurst, N. J., May 27—(AP)—A federal board's hearings into the Hindenburg disaster were completed here today with possible causes suggested by experts as the origin of the fatal fire described as "very remote."

Commander Charles E. Rosen-dahl, final witness at the naval air station hearings last night, told the U. S. department of commerce board that the investigation "so far has been directed primarily upon accidental or unpremeditated causes of fire."

Although he declined to advance openly any theories of his own as to the cause of the German Zeppelin tragedy that took 36 lives on May 6, the naval air station commandant said:

"It is impressive that the possible causes suggested as the origin of the fire have all been qualified by experts as very remote."

He said his theories, "if any," should be presented to the board in private sessions.

With conclusion of the nearly three weeks of open hearings, which members of a German commission attended as observers, the federal board planned to meet today with the Germans and technicians.

The United States naval board which stepped aside at the start of the investigation in favor of the commerce department, was to be notified officially today of the conclusion of hearings. The navy body was then expected to decide on what action it would take.

SCIENTISTS PREPARE FOR SUN ECLIPSE

Longest Totality Period In 1200 Years,
June 8

By DR. S. A. MITCHELL (Scientific Leader, National Geographic Society-U. S. Navy Solar Eclipse Expedition of 1937)

There will be feverish activity on tim. Canton Island in the middle of the Pacific ocean on the morning of June 8. Thirteen American scientists of the National Geo-graphic Society-U. S. Navy solar eclipse expedition will be busy making last-minute preparations to observe the total eclipse of the sun which will take place there at 7:39 a. m., local time (2:06 p. m. EST). After travelling 5,000 miles, and spending three weeks in preparation, they will see the sun in eclipse for a brief three and one-half minutes, yet will consider themselves well rewarded.

Why are astronomers so anxious to study eclipses? Evidently the solution of problems of the very greatest importance must be at stake to warrant the expenditure of the time, energy and money involved in such an undertaking. The sun is closely watched and studied every day by astronomers, but during an eclipse they have a chance to observe features that are hidden or difficult to study at other times.

Sun Is Huge Laboratory
The most important observations of the sun during an eclipse deal, strangely enough, not with the huge aspects of the phenomenon, but with the structure and behavior of atoms, tiny building blocks out of which the entire universe is made. Chemists and physicists in recent years have amazed the world with spectacular and highly important discoveries about the atom in their laboratories here on earth.

The sun, however, is an even better place for studying atoms because it has terrific heat, extremely small pressures and great electro-magnetic energy far exceeding anything available in earthly laboratories. All the astronomer needs are refined instruments to observe what is happening on the sun 93,- 000,000 miles away. Using the sun as a great laboratory, astronomers have contributed greatly to understanding of the structure and behavior of atoms.

In studying atoms on the sun, astronomers use the spectroscope, which breaks up the light of the sun into its various colors and wave lengths. This split-up light reveals not only what substances exist on the sun but also how their atoms are affected by the great heat and other conditions there. Helium, which today has important uses in every-day life, was discovered on the sun with the spectroscope in 1868, more than 25 years before it was isolated and identified on earth. In 1869 "coronium" was discovered in the sun's corona, but its nature is still a mystery.

All Gases Seen Surrounding the sun which we see with the naked eye are two envelopes; an inner one, the chro-mosphere, and an outer one, the corona, both of which can be best studied during an eclipse. In the chromosphere are all the gases that exist in the sun, brought to the surface by internal currents. During an eclipse it is possible to measure the heights in miles to which each gas rises above the sun's surface. Calcium atoms, which have just one external electron, rise to the greatest height, 8,500 miles. Hydrogen reaches the next greatest height, then helium.

The different heights to which gases rise indicate how they are affected by the great heat and very slight pressure there, and this has given scientists vastly better understanding of the behavior of atoms in general. It has fairly revolutionized scientific thought not only regarding the sun but also concerning those other suns which we call the stars. The expedition will use three powerful spectrographs to study the chromosphere.

Outside the chromosphere in the nebulous, white corona, which gives to the eclipsed sun its spectacular beauty and which is visible only during a total eclipse, stretching outward a million or more miles from the sun.

Scientists believe the corona's light is sunlight reflected from free electrons, particles of atoms, floating far out around the sun. The corona varies in shape with the 11-year cycle of increasing and decreasing sunspots, and as we are now nearing the time of maximum sunspots the corona is expected to be nearly circular. For the same reason there are expected to be many prominences, which are rosy-red streamers of hot hydrogen rising from the sun's surface and large enough to enfold the earth.
The expedition will use several spectrographs to record and analyze the light of the corona, including the light from the mysterious element "coronium" which is found in the first 100,000 miles outward from the sun. There are many mysteries connected with the corona still to be solved. Unfortunately it can be studied only during the few fleeting seconds of a total eclipse. Even the many eclipses that have occurred since modern photographic methods of studying the corona have been available have allowed astronomers only about 80 minutes or one hour all told in which to make observations.

The total light from the corona is equal to about half that from the full moon or one millionth that of the sun when not in eclipse. The expedition will measure this light both by visual and photographic methods. In addition the percentage of light that is polarized—that is, reflected in such a way that it vibrates in one plane only—will be measured because it helps reveal the distribution of matter in the corona.

One of the most useful studies made during all eclipses is measurement of the exact time at which the eclipse begins and ends. The times of eclipses stretching back 3,000 years give information regarding the rotation of the earth on its axis, which we call the day, and the rotation of the moon around the earth, which we call the month, and the rotation of the earth around the sun, which we call the year, and the length of the day, determined from eclipse observations, appears to be so constant that it has not varied as much as one one-hundredth of a second in all this long interval.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

ANCIENT NATURALISTS BELIEVED THAT SLOTHS LIVED ON AIR.

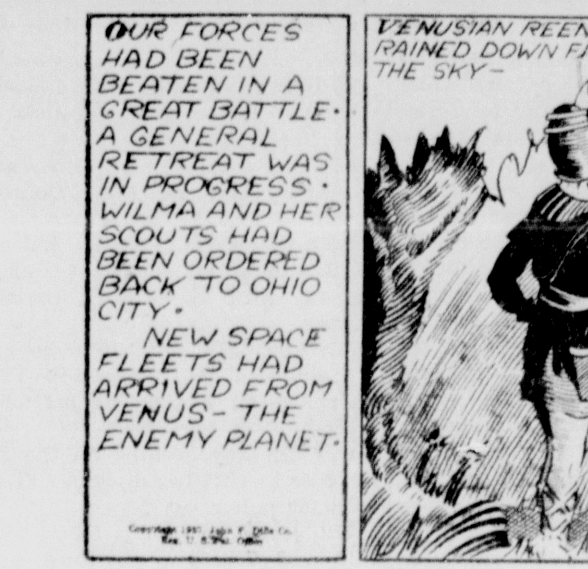

The AIRPLANE SPRUCE
ACQUIRED ITS NAME DURING THE WORLD WAR, BECAUSE OF THE EXCELLENCE OF THE WOOD FOR AIRPLANE CONSTRUCTION! UNTIL THAT TIME, IT WAS KNOWN AS SITKA SPRUCE.

The METAL FROM WHICH COINS ARE MADE IS COLD AT THE TIME OF STAMPING.

EARLY naturalists had little opportunity to study the sloth, and four centuries ago, Gonzalo De Oviedo wrote of it "Its chief desire is to cleave and stick fast unto trees. I could never perceive other but that it lived only on air."

BELOIT AGOG OVER RELAYS FRIDAY NIGHT

The first annual production of the Beloit Relays will be ready for display Friday night, May 28 at beautiful Strong Stadium. With the new lighting system installed, the jumping pits constructed and the track in perfect condition, spectators are assured of seeing a great show. This meet, the most pretentious in local history, is expected to draw a crowd approaching the 3,000 mark. Only the cooperation of the weather man is needed to make the affair a huge success.

Fifteen colleges will be represented at the relays. Illinois sends Augustana, Monmouth, Bradley, North Central, Wheaton, and Knox. From Iowa comes Coe, Cornell, Ripon, Lawrence and Beloit. Carleton will be the sole Minnesota entry.

This meet is designed to do for the smaller institutions in this section what the Drake Relays do for the universities. Only colleges which observe the three year rule are allowed to enter teams. Special relays will permit the use of freshman.

Bright fast relays are on the program in addition to six field events. A special feature will be the 100 yard dash, which will be the only event to take place during the afternoon. As originally planned the field events and trial heats were on the afternoon program, but the schedule is now arranged so that the entire carnival will be running during the course of the evening.

The eight relays include the 440 yard relay, the 880 yard relay, the mile relay, the two mile relay, the medley relay (220-440-880-mile) and the 360 shuttle high hurdles relay. Two special freshman events the spring medley relay (440-220-220-880) and the distance medley relay (440-880-1320-mile) are also part of the program. The six field events include the discus, shot put, pole vault, broad jump, high jump, and the javelin throw.

Beautiful plaques will be awarded to every winning relay team as well as medals to the winners of first, second and third in the individual events. The plaques will bear enlarged duplicates of the individual medals. The medals will be of bronze and will have Strong Memorial Stadium as a background. Above this the passing of a baton between two relay men is pictured and below the inscription, "Beloit Relays". Two oak leaves symbolize victory and strength. Ribbons will be presented to members of the first three placing relay teams in each relay and to winners of the first five places in the individual events.

One of the outstanding features of the meet will be the announcing of all events by Ted Canty, renowned sports commentator. Canty has gained nation-wide fame in this particular field and his extra touch of color will add a great deal of sparkle to the Relays.

BRETHREN CHURCH
Rev. William E. Thompson will give an address, "The Highway of Life," to the high school graduates of his church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. This beautiful and unique service has been planned to be given in honor of these fine young people, 12 in number. The group will wear their graduating caps and gowns during the service. The pastor will lead the class as they enter the church, as Mrs. Clyde Lenox plays the processional march. All members and friends of the church are urged to attend Sunday school and remain for the beautiful service.

CHAPTER I

"I MUSTN'T cry until I get home." This remark was not audibly spoken. It was simply a mental reminder that in spite of coldly disinterested theatrical and employment agencies, one did not burst into tears on a crowded New York street. The girl's name was Patricia and she suited her. Topaz-colored hair, blue eyes, long curling lashes, skin of warm ivory and rose. Although close to tears her proud little head was high and her round little chin jutted stubbornly.

Climbing the stairs of a five-story walk-up she silently communed with herself. "You're licked, Pats my girl. Just because the folks back home said you were an actress you spent your last cent to learn that you're a flop. You can't even get a job in the back row of a chorus. So what's the next step, if any?" And wistfully she thought, "I hope Trissy has beaten me home."

Opening the door of a tiny apartment she called hopefully and was answered by a cheerful voice from the kitchen. A girl appeared in the doorway. She bore a sharp resemblance to the colorful Pats; might have been her reflection in a mirror even, and strangely enough they both bore the same name. Patricia Hunt Warren. They were cousins and each had been named for her paternal grandmother. Trissy's home was on a small prune ranch in Oregon and Pats, eight years younger, had spent her life in a quiet Indiana city, reared by the grandmother for whom she was named.

TRISSY said excitedly, "Get ready for a thrill, darling," and Pats' eyes widened, sparkled. "I've got a job—a real job with a salary."

"Not really," gasped Pats. "Tell me."

"Well, this morning on the subway I overheard two girls talking about Don Monteray. It seems he fired his secretary again last week."

"Not Don Monteray, the movie star?"

"Yes, he's in New York for a few weeks. Lives at the Avalon on Park avenue. One of the girls on the subway had applied for the position without any luck. She said applicants had been streaming in by the dozen, but up to last night no one had been engaged."

"And so," Pats was childishly eager.

"So I joined the throng. Waited until this afternoon before getting an interview."

"With Don Monteray?" breathlessly. "Did you talk to him?"

"Gracious, no. I saw an agent or somebody. Well, he hired me," she ended on a deep sigh of relief. "Now you can get your chance on the stage. It will take time, of course, but—"

"I'm no actress, Trissy," Pats broke in. "I only think I am."

"You are an actress. You simply haven't had the breaks."

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE REMAKING OF JACOB

Text: Genesis 28:10-22; 32:24-30
BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

"The Remaking of Jacob," the title of this lesson, is itself significant. Jacob certainly needed re-making. The title of the lesson for intermediate and senior groups, "Finding One's Better Self," also is significant, for this was precisely what happened in Jacob's re-making.

Jacob, the shrewd trickster, grasping for himself and his own interest, was transformed into a man capable of thinking of others. Face to face with new responsibilities that put upon him the care of other people and duties in relation to his community, he became a different man, the sort of man upon whom civilizations can be built.

One may easily read into a narrative like this conceptions of God and of religious experience that are associated with a later development in the life of Israel. But the remarkable thing is the way in which this simple, primitive narrative is so true to vital experience.

Lying down, weary, and with a stone for a pillow, Jacob dreamed a dream of a ladder reaching up to heaven. Awakening, the dream became for him a symbol, an evidence of the divine presence, and he showed the spirit of devotion by taking the stone upon which he had slept, setting it up for a pillar and pouring oil upon the top of it.

He was capable of reverence and devotion, and no man can have the true experience of religion, or can face life with adequate equipment, who is devoid of these things.

His conception of religion was not altogether the highest. There is more or less a sense of bargaining in his vow that if God would be with him and would prosper him, giving him food and raiment, he would give one-tenth of all that he had to God.

But one need not quibble too much about Jacob's bargaining spirit. There probably are very few of those who might criticize him who give one-tenth of their income for religious purposes.

The point is that Jacob was thoroughly moved to something higher and finer than he had had in his life before. The story of the wrestling apparently symbolizes some inward struggle before this experience of Jacob became real.

From that struggle, Jacob emerged with a sense of conquest and with a new hope and peace. He had had an experience that transformed his life, and the Jacob who came from Bethel to go about his daily tasks and duties was a very different man from the Jacob who had tricked Esau out of his birthright, and who had hitherto lived so completely for self-seeking.

Perhaps the transformation began before his experience at Bethel, when Jacob realized the meaning of earthly love. There is a world of significance in the simple Bible statement that "he served 14 years for Rachel, and it seemed but a day."

One recalls the proverb of a later world, "Man, while he loves is never quite depraved," and one wonders whether the experience of Bethel did not have its beginning when Jacob first developed a new sense of love and earthly devotion. That is often the first real step of a man toward God.
